Acoustic comfort

Saint-Gobain launches new service for restaurant owners in France

Saint-Gobain is launching BRUIZ, a new service for restaurant owners in France, designed to improve restaurant acoustics. Using innovative acoustic diagnostic methods, BRUIZ provides the sector with Saint-Gobain's expertise in building sciences. The BRUIZ solutions will help make restaurants more comfortable for everyone.

Noise is one of the main sources of restaurant diners' dissatisfaction. Exposure to noise is also a considerable source of fatigue for the floor and kitchen staff. Noise levels often exceed 80 decibels, roughly the level generated on a busy urban freeway in peak hour.

BRUIZ is a turnkey service for restaurant owners combining a reliable and affordable technical diagnostic service, the specification of effective and aesthetic solutions, together with quick professional installation without causing any disruption to the restaurant's regular business.
